Deadly parasites invade as raccoon population booms

By TAMARA GRIPPI and KIRSTIE WILDE

AS A Pacific Grove baby fights for his life from a severe brain disease caused by raccoon roundworm, health officials and scientists from around the state are calling the local raccoon problem, "the worst overpopulation seen or ever heard of."

(In the wild, one male raccoon per 3-acres is the norm. In P.G., they found 13 males on one half-acre parcel.)

At a packed community meeting in Pacific Grove October 14, several residents called on city officials to do more than just "discourage" the raccoons that have literally taken over the town.

And in Carmel, residents and city officials are also worried that the raccoon problem is

'Mini Bixby' caps $3M golf hole

By KIRSTIE WILDE

SOME BEAUTIFUL Alaskan cypress wood traveled from one end of the country to the other — twice — and now links the championship tee to the brand new green of what may be the most expensive golf hole in America.

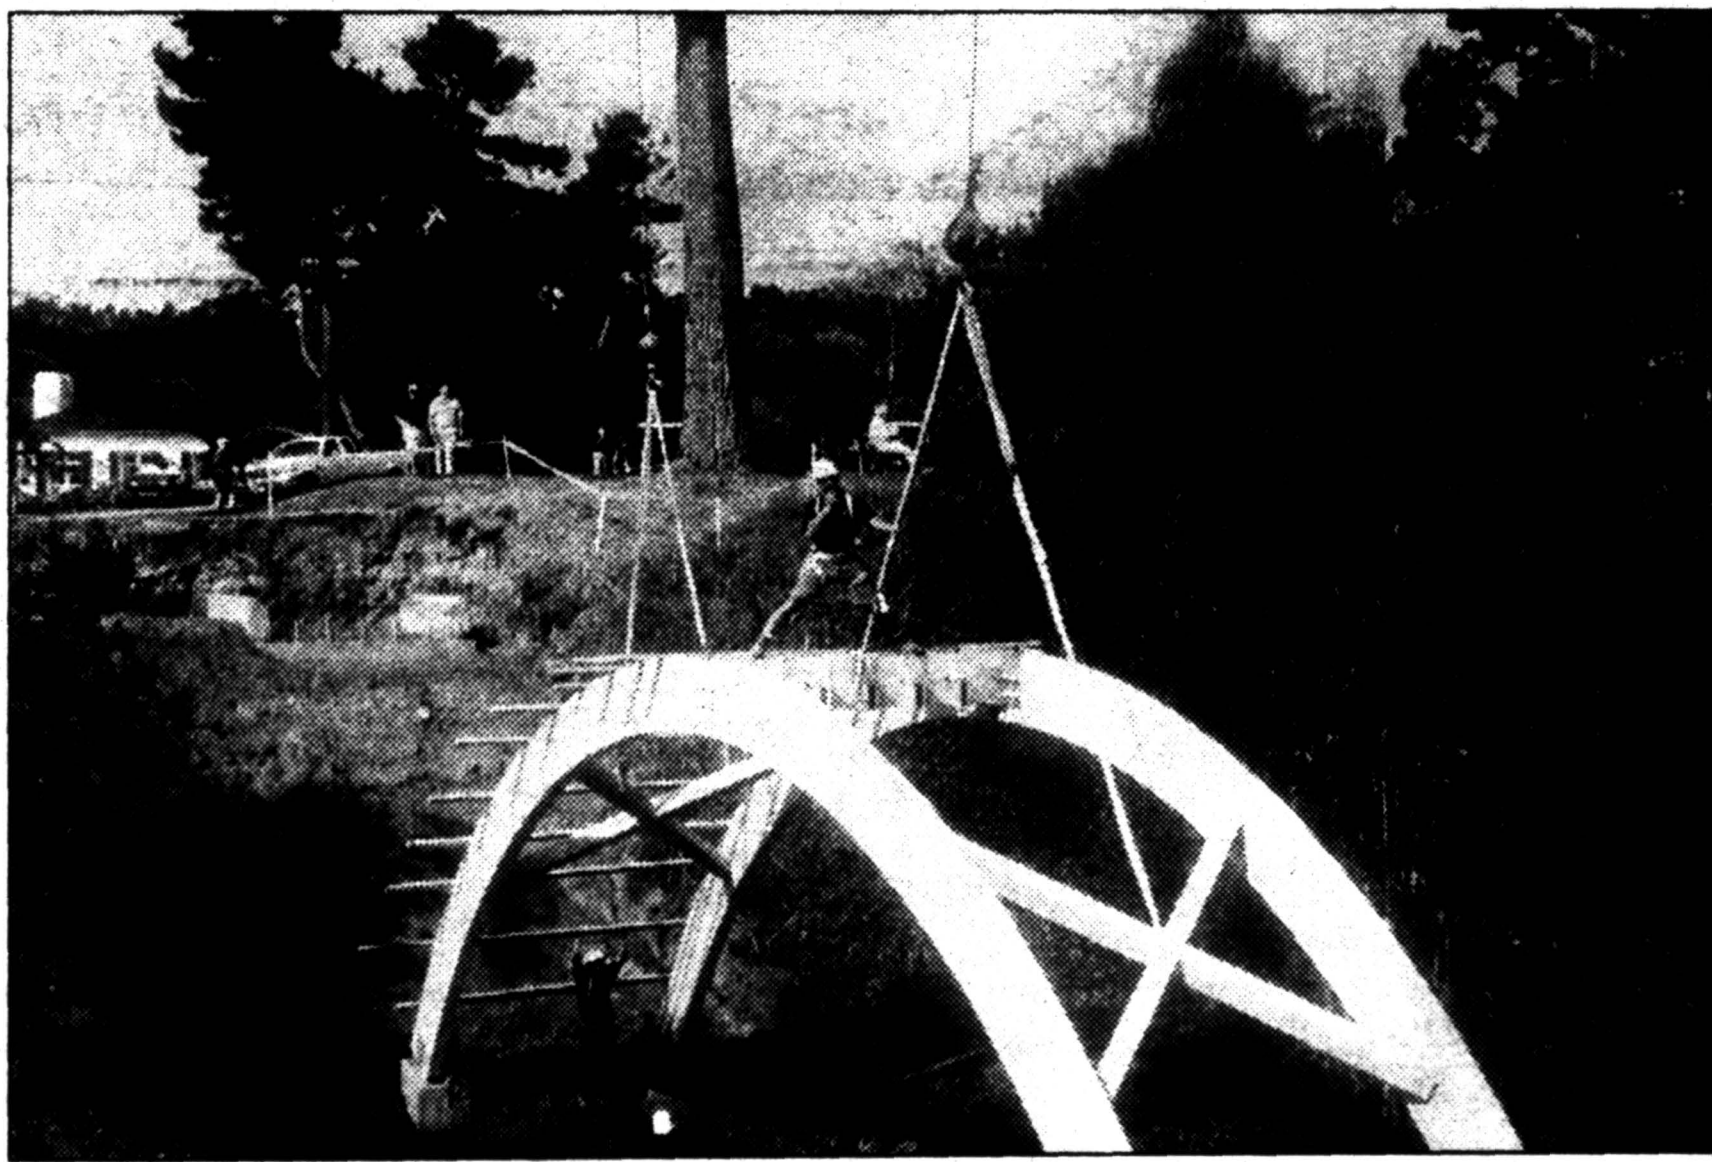

The cypress-and-redwood bridge, built in Savannah, Georgia, and shipped in two big arcs last week, was lowered into the canyon at Stillwater Cove by twin cranes October 13. When finished, it will resemble the historic Bixby Creek bridge on Highway 1 in Big Sur.

Project manager Tom McMillin hopes the completed 5th hole at the Pebble Beach Golf Links will be completed by November 19, in time for the Calloway Invitational tournament.

When the cost of the land, drainage project, landscaping and $175,000 bridge are totaled, the price tag on the Jack Nicklaus-designed hole will come to a nice round $3 million, according to Steve Aitchison of the Pebble Beach Co.

"It can only be described as breathtaking," Aitchison said Wednesday of the view golfers will enjoy when they step up to the tee. "The white sailboats bobbing in the cove, Point Lobos in the distance — it's unbelievably spectacular."

REPUBLICANS SEEK TO UNSEAT CONGRESSIONAL, ASSEMBLY INCUMBENTS

■ Chavez says 'people must come first'

Stories by PAUL MILLER

PHILLIP CHAVEZ isn't shy about tackling the hot topics of Central Coast politics as he seeks to unseat Fred Keeley as Assemblyman for the 27th District.

On the area's chronic water shortage: "We don't have a water problem, we have a political problem," he says. "Of course I favor a new dam on the Carmel River, and I also think we should put a dam on the Arroyo Seco to alleviate the water problems in the Salinas Valley."

■ McCampbell calls himself a 'pro-choice conservative'

"PEOPLE ASK me why I should be a Congressman when I've never even been a planning commissioner," Pebble Beach resident Bill McCampbell says in explaining why he wants to represent the 16th California Congressional District, which stretches from Santa Cruz to Big Sur.

The answer, he says, is that Congress should be the "people's house" — occupied by ordinary citizens who temporarily leave their home towns and careers to represent their neighbors in Washington.

CHP cracking down on speeders, tailgaters on CV Road

By TAMARA GRIPPI

JUST A year after a Carmel Valley teenager was killed on Carmel Valley Road, California Highway Patrol officers report that speeding and traffic accidents continue to be major problems along that thoroughfare.

On average, there are two traffic accidents per day on Carmel Valley Road, according to David Barone, community service officer for the CHP. While the majority of these accidents are non-injury, Barone says that they are two accidents too many.

The CHP has stepped up its patrol of the area in the past year, according to Barone. The department has been using new equipment on CV Road, including a "specter trailer" that shows drivers their speeds as they pass and five new motorcycles, which are stationed in the area once a month.

The CHP has found that the speed trailer — which is usually set up near one of the schools along the road — is quite effective in convincing people to slow down.

At least one officer patrols Carmel Valley Road every day and sometimes two CHP cars are out clocking speeds, Barone said.

"Basically, what we're trying to do is avoid another fatal accident," Barone said.

The majority of the accidents are caused by drivers who are following too closely. "Following too closely causes road rage," Barone said. "If a driver in front has to stop or swerve, it's guaranteed there'll be an accident."

Drivers are supposed to follow the car ahead with an allowance of 10 feet for every 10 mph that they're traveling. Drivers going 60 mph should stay 60 feet behind the car in front.

While most of Carmel Valley Road is posted with a speed limit of 55 mph, some heavily congested areas near businesses and driveways are posted at 45 mph. In addition, there are several 25 mph zones located near schools.

The worst places for speeding are the school zones and the strips of road near Robinson Canyon, Mid-Valley Shopping Center and Carmel Rancho Boulevard.

Barone said he's seen some drivers speed through the 25 mph zones near schools at 60 mph.

Another major concern is that people don't stop when the school buses stop with their red lights flashing. And unless there is a two-foot divider in the road, drivers are supposed to stop in both directions.

Barone said the CHP is really cracking down on people who ignore the law and try to pass the buses.

Fifteen-year-old Ray Avery was killed on Carmel Valley Road when he exited an MST bus and ran out to cross the street in front of the bus. The driver of an oncoming cement truck never saw Avery until it was too late.

While Avery's death last year sparked public outcry about safety on the road, many people have reverted to their bad driving habits.

"People tend to forget," Barone said. "Unfortunately it takes another tragedy to wake people up."

Caltrans tests Hatton soil

WEEKDAYS through December, Caltrans will be working in Hatton Canyon to conduct general maintenance and soil testing, according to a Caltrans press report.

The maintenance work consists of repairing the emergency response access road into the canyon as part of a long-standing agreement with the California Department of Forestry. Equipment used for this work will include dump trucks, loaders and a bulldozer.

Soil testing will be done to identify soil types and properties. This information will be used during the construction phase of the Hatton Canyon Scenic Highway project, according to Caltrans. Most of the work will be done near Edgefield Place.

Police summoned by cat inside vehicle

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Department last week.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 4

a.m.) at inn on Monte Verde. Officer closed it.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Alarm at home on San Antonio. Appeared secure — dog inside. Alarm company notified.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a disoriented male on Monte Verde near Palou. Unable to locate.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: At Carmel Gate, Pebble Beach security advised that a man who was supposedly going in to Pebble Beach to visit his mother was asked to stop and confirm his clearance. There was no contact with his mother. The man left the scene in his truck but prior to leaving kicked an orange safety cone which landed on top of another vehicle, causing marring and a slight dent on top of hood. Later, man was contacted by telephone. He admitted kicking orange safety cone which inadvertently impacted with the parked vehicle. He was apologetic concerning the outcome and offered to pay restitution for any damages. Owner of damaged vehicle was contacted and he was receptive to speaking to man and resolving the matter civilly.

CHAVEZ

On traffic: "I think we should build the Hatton Canyon highway, and the Prunedale Bypass. Highway 156 should be upgraded and so should Highway 17 (from Santa Cruz to San Jose)," he says.

Chavez, 32, runs a produce exporting business and has strong roots in agriculture. He grew up working in his father's various ag businesses — sharecropping strawberries and growing lettuce. His father's frustrations trying to make a living in California agriculture have helped shape Chavez' political views.

"My father is very well respected as one of the best lettuce farmers in Arizona, but he had to quit farming in California because of government over-regulation," he says.

California's minority groups are the ones who suffer the most in this era of strict government control, Chavez says, because they are the farthest down the economic ladder.

And the fact that "more people today work in government than in manufacturing," he says is proof that our country has too much government.

"Every time Keeley speaks, he pats himself on the back about the number of bills he's had signed by the Governor. But I say, my God, how many laws do we need?" Chavez asks.

Keeley's "poor record" as a Santa Cruz County Supervisor speaks for itself, his challenger claims.

"For eight years he sat on the Santa Cruz County traffic commission, and he stood in the way of every solution to the ridiculous Highway 17 death trap," Chavez says.

"But the Pajaro River debacle tells even more about Keeley's mind-set," continues Chavez, who lives in Pebble Beach. "Before the 1995 flood, which caused terrible damage, Keeley resisted clearing out the Pajaro River channel and repairing the levees because he wanted to 'strike a balance' between people and the environment," he says. "His inaction made thousands suffer and cost the county $25 million in damages — all because he wouldn't put people first."

Chavez wants an end to state control of schools. Instead, he says educational decisions should be made by teachers and parents in local communities. He supports competency testing for teachers, but he also wants merit pay. "I don't see any reason why the best teachers don't make more than the principal," he says.

Asked whether a new dam and a series of major road improvements will lead to new growth, Chavez doesn't flinch. "Caltrans doesn't give out building permits and neither does Cal-Am water. What I am advocating is that we take care of the people who are already here," he says.

Next week: what Keeley accomplished during his first term.

"You get the experience at home and take it with you to the capital, not the other way around," he says.

McC Campbell's opponent, incumbent Democrat Sam Farr, has been an elected official most of his adult life — having been a supervisor and an assemblyman before winning a special 1993 election to succeed Leon Panetta in Washington.

"Congress isn't supposed to be for career politicians," McC Campbell says.

Unseating Farr won't be easy for McC Campbell, who's in his fourth run for Congress. In 1994 he carried Monterey County but was swamped by a huge Farr majority in Santa Cruz County. In both counties, most registered voters are Democrats.

This year, McC Campbell has tailored his campaign to win even more crossover Democrat votes than he did four years ago.

"The quality of life, the environment — these are the issues that are important to everyone who lives here," he says. As a fifth generation resident of the Central Coast, McC Campbell says he will aggressively protect the area's environmental resources.

"My uncle, Herb Blanks, was mayor of Carmel in the '60s, and also the city's first forester," he says. "I learned from him how important it is to protect the scenic beauty and the wildlife."

McC Campbell says Farr has betrayed the environment by aggressively promoting "Los Angeles-type" development at Fort Ord.

"A city of 70,000 people, laid out on a grid, is not what this area needs and it's exactly what Farr has put together up there," McC Campbell says.

He favors a much smaller city, occupying only the land that's already developed at Fort Ord and land that's surrounded by development. And he thinks a little imaginative planning would make a huge difference.

"There's no environment plan at Fort Ord, nothing to cut down on the automobile trips," he complains.

McC Campbell, a lawyer and business consultant, adheres to Republican Party orthodoxy when he calls for tax cuts, reducing the size of government, "full scale election reform," and a halt to using Social Security surpluses to pay for Federal programs.

Because the Social Security trust fund is routinely used to pay the government's bills, "there is no money in the Social Security trust fund," he laments, "just a bunch of IOUs the government writes to itself."

Furthermore, "the budget surplus we've been celebrating this year isn't really there, because the 'extra' money really belongs to Social Security and shouldn't be touched," he says.

And he has called for elimination of the IRS and the Federal tax code. "The IRS has 112,000 employees, and our tax laws contain 5,557,000 words," he says, "and nobody can understand it." A new, simple tax on business transactions could replace the present income tax morass, he says.

But he has also taken a

Man arrested for impersonating a 10-year-old boy

By TAMARA GRIPPI

MONTEREY COUNTY Sheriff's deputies arrested a man at Carmel Rancho Shopping Center who allegedly had a fanny pack full of false IDS and three felony warrants for his arrest from Sonoma County.

Anthony Edward Burke, arrested October 5, now faces local charges of manufacturing a birth certificate (a felony) and two misdemeanors: false impersonation and giving false information to police.

During his arraignment October 9, Burke entered a plea of not guilty to all the charges. According to the sheriff's report, Burke has a substantial rap sheet dating back to 1989, detailing arrests for forgery, perjury, embezzlement, grand theft and burglary.

If Burke is convicted of any new felony, he faces life in prison under California's "Three Strikes" law.

Deputies say Burke identified himself as "Travis Hughes" and carried a Social Security card, a DMV permit, an altered birth certificate and other documents all under the name of Hughes.

The tampering on the document apparently wasn't a high-tech job. The dates on the birth certificate had been partially erased and rewritten with what looked like a felt pen, according to the Sheriff's report.

Deputy Bill Sanderson tracked down the woman who was listed as the mother on Burke's altered birth certificate. After talking to the woman, Sanderson discovered that the real "Travis Hughes" was a 10-year-old boy. The last digit of the year of birth, 1988 had been erased and changed to 1968.

Burke is currently in custody in Monterey County Jail where he is awaiting extradition to Sonoma County.

Here's your Hatton; what

THE MAN across the table from me at breakfast is apt to snort derisively every time the subject of the Hatton Canyon freeway is splashed across the front page.

"I've been here 40 years," he'll tell me, "and most of that time has been spent arguing over whether or not to build the damn thing." (He tends to be feisty in the morning.)

Thus, it was perverse human nature that made me call to his attention the "compromise" design offered two weeks ago by John Q. Public, aka Ray Parks, Carmel architect.

The only response I got was, "Humph!" which I interpreted to mean, "Young-whipper-snapper-Johnny-come-lately-up-start."

it's your hurry?

peninsula for 14 years. What do I know?

Looking beyond the pros and cons, I was simply tickled by the idea that someone — anyone — might walk in off the street and make a viable suggestion. Haven't we ALL had great ideas that, if taken seriously, might truly benefit society?

So I'm here to offer MY Great Idea on local traffic (at the same time sidestepping the issue of Hatton Canyon):

REDUCE THE SPEED LIMIT TO 50 MPH ON HIGHWAY 1 FROM CANYON DEL REY TO CARPENTER STREET IN CARMEL.

"Why?" you ask. "We're all in a hurry to get where we're going."

So am I, but I'd prefer to get there ALIVE.

Cal Trans, in its infant (sic) wisdom has proposed a concrete barrier down the middle of the planted median strip that divides Highway 1, north and south, through Monterey. Their reasons: 1) With the state speed limit increased to 65 mph, there is now an increased potential for lethal head-on collisions. 2) They can't afford to keep up the landscaping anymore, and 3) If they DID maintain the greenery, Cal Trans landscape workers would be in more danger due to the increased speed of traffic.

Sounds valid, doesn't it? That's one of Cal Trans' great skills — making nonsense sound reasonable.

Only a few years ago Cal Trans diddled with the merge of Highway 68 and Highway 1 (next to the Navy School). They gave us more lanes but, to my way of thinking, increased the possibility for side-swipe collisions. Before that, the middle lane was a safe exit for either left or right. The same design can be found on Highway 1 North at Castroville where a middle lane provides an exit to either Santa Cruz or Highway 156. Drivers don't have to make sudden life-threatening lane changes.

BRIDGE

Some of the details of the project almost defy belief. R.J. Harper, director of golf at the Pebble Beach Co., described the odyssey of some plugs of Poa Annua grass that eventually became the green for the 5th hole:

"We grew the grass on our sod farm near the 10th, from plugs taken during aeration of other greens. That way the new one will match the color and texture of the others exactly," he said. "Then we grew the green, cut it and rolled it, then sent it on refrigerated trucks to Palm Springs to be washed."

Come again?

Harper explained that the grass was treated to a kind of hydrojet massage in Palm Springs, so all but a quarter inch of dirt was removed from the sod, leaving just the grass

'Then we grew the green, cut it and rolled it, then sent it on refrigerated trucks to Palm Springs to be washed.'

— R.J. Harper

and nice, long roots. Then it was trucked (chilled, again) back to Pebble Beach where it was laid over perfectly sculpted terrain just two weeks ago, and now looks like it's been there for months.

Meanwhile, the old 5th hole will become a wide grass boulevard for the galleries that follow the pros at the next big Pebble Beach tournament.

"This used to be a terrible bottleneck — there was hardly enough room for the fans and the golfers to walk," said Paul Leach, managing director of the Lone Cypress Co. The old 5th was detoured inland by Samuel F. B. Morse when he laid the course out in 1914, because it had been sold earlier for a private home. Eighty years later, the company was finally able to buy the land back, demolish the house and complete Morse's vision for an unbroken, ocean-front golf course.

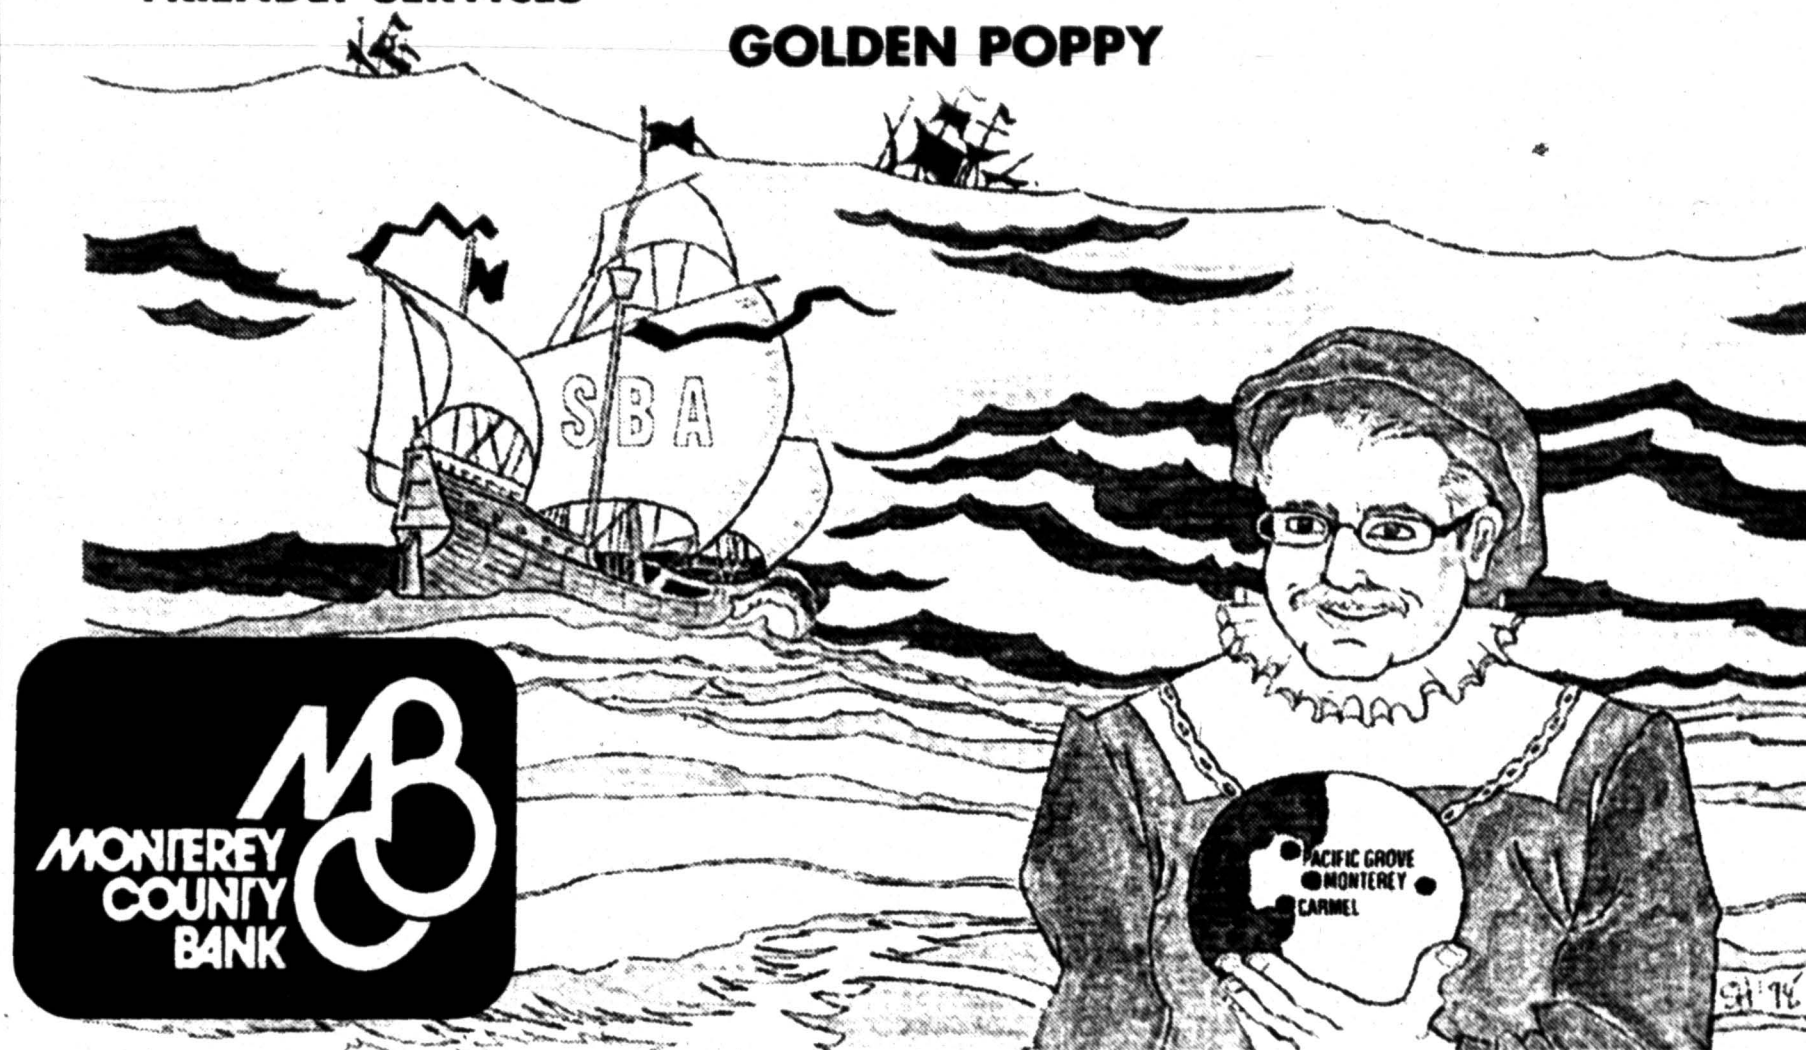

And who will have the honor of being the first to tee off on the $3 million hole?

"I already did," confided Harper. "I hit a 5-iron and landed in the bunker."

Save the Deer

The population and condition of the Blacktail and Mule Deer herds of California are at an all time low. The increased development of lands needed for migration or winter and summer feeding, poaching, depredation, and other factors are resulting in decreasing numbers of deer.

The yearly budgets of the State of California Department of Fish and Game, the federal Bureau of Land Management, the Department of Forestry, and the United States Park Service have been cut to unacceptable lows due to lack of funds.

The California Deer Association, a California 501 C3 non-profit Association was founded in 1996 to help solve this problem.

The C.D.A. formed a statewide Habitat Committee made up of members, state and federal agencies. The purpose of the Habitat Committee is to fund projects that will result in the continued improvement of the deer populations.

resident of Carmel and Pebble Beach. Friends remembered him as a generous supporter of local organizations such as Pacific Repertory Theater and the Monterey County Symphony.

"He would give you the shirt off his back," said friend Sherrie McCullough. "He would do anything for you."

Mr. Samson was born September 21, 1922, in San Francisco. He graduated from U.C. Berkeley in 1944 after serving as a Navy pilot in World War II.

He had a very successful career in the Bay Area as a syndicator of apartment buildings, a developer and a private venture capitalist.

For many years he lived with his wife, Carolyn in Woodside before retiring to the Monterey Peninsula.

Mr. Sampson devoted much of his time and resources to the arts, education and social agencies, said friend David Lewis. Mr. Sampson worked closely with Lewis to move the Pacific Repertory Theater to its new home in the historic Golden Bough in Carmel.

"The Golden Bough could not have been saved for future generations without his generosity and insight," Lewis said.

McCullough fondly remembered the first time she met Samson and his wife, Carolyn. As president of the Monterey County Symphony, McCullough sat next to the couple at a symphony luncheon. "He teased me for many years after that I was always after his pocket book because I came away from meeting him that day with a check in hand," she says.

At the dedication ceremony for the new 5,000 square-foot student union building at the Monterey Institute last June, MIIS president Dr. Richard Krasno praised Mr. Samson a "true visionary."

"The students who come out of this school are the future leaders and problem-solvers of the world," Mr. Samson said at the June ceremony.

The new center is scheduled to open in 1999 at the school's downtown Monterey campus.

As a successful entrepreneur, Mr. Samson also was delighted to help launch a number of small businesses on the Peninsula in the last five years, Lewis said.

'Never met anyone like him'

As a friend, Mr. Samson was one of a kind. "I never met somebody quite like him," McCullough said. "He was a great conversationalist. He would look you straight in the eye and would be very much interested in what you were saying."

The Samsons loved traveling and just a few weeks ago took a trip to Yosemite with the McCulloughs.

Mr. Samson was especially happy to visit the magnificent park once more because he had fond memories of working there when he was 19 years old. "With Joe and Carolyn it was always fun and fascinating conversation," McCullough said. "We were almost always interrupting each other because we had so much to say and so much to share."

"This community will sorely miss his energy and love for life," Lewis said.

He is survived by his wife; his five children, Leslie Bell, Steve Samson, Susan Galen, Leslie Fross and David Samson; his grandson, Ryan; and his sister, Mary Babow.

No services will be held according to Mr. Samson's wishes.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Monterey Institute of International Studies, 425 Van Buren Street, Monterey, CA 93940.

BEVERLY

The "bumper car" game by the Navy School is particularly treacherous since many motorists in the area are tourists, trying to read all the signs in mere seconds, and without a clue as to where they're going!

Now look again at Caltrans' three reasons for the proposed barrier, and tell me why reducing the speed limit would not be cheaper, easier, and much more aesthetic.

The precedent for reducing speed at hazardous locations has already been set by the state. Highway 1 at Highway 17 in Santa Cruz has speed reduction signs. In Southern California where Highway 101 winds out to the coast at Gaviota, the mountainous topography and sharp curves dictate a slowing down. This is not rocket science; this is common sense.

If you agree, please send this column to someone in Sacramento, preferably someone who can READ!

There! I've gotten that off my chest. I feel better, and I didn't even mention Hatton Canyon, much to the relief of the man sitting across the table from me this morning.

Woman will tell what it's like to live with Alzheimer's

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

THE DREAD of Alzheimer's disease is probably in the back of almost all seniors' minds — pushed into deep recesses and hidden with other fears too disconcerting to face.

One courageous woman who has confronted the trepidation head-on is Janet Hurley, a retired marriage and family counselor who has lived in the Carmel area for over 30 years and now knows for sure she has Alzheimer's.

Hurley, 71, suspected she was carrying the Alzheimer's gene and a medical test confirmed it. Her prescience allowed Hurley time to plot a strategy to deal with symptoms that are already interfering with her life.

She can still read, but cannot drive her car now because of the possibility of getting lost; she sometimes has to grope for the correct word, but can still communicate much in her workshops. The next will be held from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, October 20, in the Community Room at the Barnyard. The presentation is free.

Hurley, with the support of her friend and nutritionist Linda Rodriguez, will discuss living with Alzheimer's on a day to day basis.

Rodriguez says that she benefited from Janet Hurley, left, a retired marriage and family counselor who has lived in the Carmel area for over 30 years, will discuss living with Alzheimer's on a day to day basis. She will be assisted by friend and nutritionist Linda Rodriguez, right.

Hurley's counseling some 30 years ago and now is helping Hurley with her knowledge of nutrition.

She recommends no red meat, a little chicken, lots of soy products and supplements such as ginkgo biloba, among others.

"Alzheimer's disease eats up parts of your memory, and sometimes robs you of your dignity," Rodriguez says. "It's a chronic, degenerative condition that leads to progressive mental and physical debilitation and ultimately to death."

She believes nutritional foods, supplements, exercises and lifestyle changes may prevent its onset or slow it down. Hurley believes they already have.

"Oh, my gosh, yes," she told The Pine Cone. "I feel they are slowing the progression of the disease. They are just pushing it back."

Alzheimer's close to home

Rodriguez' own mother has had Alzheimer's disease for five years and no longer knows who her caretaker husband is, nor who Linda is. "She knows I am a good person and familiar, but has no recollection that she raised me," Rodriguez said. "No matter how much you reassure a person with Alzheimer's, they forget that within minutes. The bad part is the hallucinations and delusions they may suffer. When they are awake, sometimes you know they are having a terrible nightmare."

Rodriguez says her mother went downhill fast during the two months she spent in a nursing home. "Within those two months she needed a wheelchair. We took her out of the nursing home, and with good nutrition and supplements, she was back to walking, and within three or four weeks she could walk a mile and a half every other day," she said, indicating that the quality of her mother's life had improved.

Rodriguez says that heart disease and Alzheimer's disease are both vascular in nature, "and what's good for the heart is good for the brain."

Because of her mother's affliction, Rodriguez underwent a gene test and learned she doesn't carry the gene. "This doesn't assure me that I won't someday have Alzheimer's — but if my lifestyle is good, if I follow a good life dietary plan, exercise and relieve stress by practicing, for instance, tai chi, yoga or sound therapy, I stand a good chance of making it through old age free from Alzheimer's."

RACCOONS

out of hand here, too. "I can't tell you many people have called me about it," said Carmel City Councilwoman Sue McCloud.

McCloud said she is particularly worried about Carmel's part-time families with young children who may not know about the life-threatening parasite that lives in raccoon feces, called Baylisascaris procyonis.

Small children can be infected by getting dirt or sand in their mouths, if a raccoon has used the play area as a latrine. Infected raccoons can shed millions of eggs a day in their droppings, and an "infectious dose" the size of an M&M contains 40,000 eggs, according to Dr. William Murray, microbiologist at San Jose State University. He says when the larvae hatch, they course through a human body "voraciously," attacking the brain, the liver and the eyes.

Dr. Carol Glaser, the pediatrician who is trying to save the stricken baby, says there is no known cure. She said raccoon roundworm infection is rarer than rabies, even though the disease is rampant in the local raccoon population. Fourteen animals that were trapped near the child's Pacific Grove home all tested positive for the parasite.

There have been four documented cases where children have died from the infection and there are currently six cases where children are suffering severe damage to the central nervous system.

Exclude the pests

Residents in both Carmel and Pacific Grove are concerned now that they've learned that the raccoon latrines — in backyards, wood piles and underneath decks — contain potentially fatal parasites.

"I have had an ongoing problem with the invasion of the raccoons," said Carmelite Carla Belgrano Ramsey. "I've found them tearing the siding off the house, the shingles off the roof and using the yard, patio and garden as their latrine."

"When we're eating outside and it gets dark, the raccoons will jump on our patio," said Gail Searce. "We have to take our food and run inside."

The best advice from the experts: Exclude the raccoons from your property and eliminate all their food and water sources.

'The disease is characterized by wandering juvenile worms in the tissues of human hosts.'

— Dr. William Murray

Some of those suggestions include:

- banding trees with sheet metal.
- using raccoon-proof metal vents.
- boarding up the areas underneath decks.
- securing the garbage cans.

However, Laurie Frazer, wildlife specialist and vector control technician from Santa Clara County, warned that once residents shut out the raccoons, the animals will come back with a vengeance. "They will get extremely aggressive, ripping into homes," Frazer said. "The damage they cause will defy your belief."

Some residents wondered whether stronger action, particularly extermination, might be necessary.

Carmel Police Chief Don Fuselier explained that the law has changed and private citizens can now legally hire contractors to trap raccoons and euthanize them.

Ramsey told The Pine Cone that she hired a contractor to trap her raccoons, but the animals weren't tempted by the food in the traps. Obviously they were getting better grub elsewhere, she said.

Fuselier agreed that as long as people persist in feeding the raccoons, the creatures will continue to proliferate.

Karen Ehnert, public health epidemiologist for Monterey County, warned residents that even eliminating the raccoons won't ensure safety from the parasites. "The eggs have been living in the environment for years and years," Ehnert said. And their larvae are nearly impossible to kill, except by burning. People who want to clear out a raccoon latrine from their yard should take the following precautions, according to Richard LeWarne of the Monterey County Health Department:

- wear disposable gloves, rubber boots and a mask.
- spray down the area with straight bleach to keep the coating of eggs from being so sticky.
- shovel slowly and do not disturb the dust.
- put the contaminated material in a double plastic bag. Point it away from yourself to slowly close it and get the air out.
- dispose in the garbage. And warn the garbage man.

The growing problem of voter fraud

THIS WEEK, news came out of Los Angeles that a voter registration drive had produced 16,000 phony registration cards — cards that were for real people at fake addresses, or for people who didn't exist at all.

As we reported earlier this year, California's voter registration system is laughably lax, with no requirement that a person registering to vote show any ID, or even their face.

You can mail in several registration cards, with any names you choose. Then you can ask for absentee ballots by mail without giving a reason why you can't vote in person. And then you can vote by mail several times. Voilà! Instant voter fraud. And if you just vote two or three times there's hardly any chance you'll get caught.

A vote fraud investigator admitted this week that one person could easily register and vote in all 58 California counties without raising the slightest bit of suspicion.

All the fraudulent voter has to do is promise that they're telling the truth.

Imagine Carmel giving out resident parking passes just on faith. Or a bank handing out money just because you swear you deposited it. Or the DMV issuing drivers licenses to people who simply sign a statement promising that they are competent to drive.

Is the act of voting so much less important than any of these that it can be done solely on faith and without any checks at all?

Incredibly, defenders of the current system say that it works because nobody can prove that voter fraud has affected the outcome of any election.

But the essential flaw in the current voter system is that it is literally impossible to find out how much voter fraud is underway. The only way somebody gets caught is if their fraud is so blatant that it calls attention to itself.

That's what happened in LA, where paid registration "bounty hunters" copied thousand of names out of the phone book.

Apologists for the current system inevitably will brag that discovery of the duplicitous bounty hunters in LA somehow "proves" that the current system works.

But California has seen many elections in the last twenty years — since the lax system of registering and voting was put in place — that generated very passionate feelings among much of the populace. It is hard to believe that all of these devoted people can resist the temptation to vote several times knowing how easy it is to do so.

We repeat our call for some sort of identification requirement — driver's license or social security number — at the time of voter registration, and a statewide database to verify that each person is registered only once.

Otherwise, what happened in Los Angeles will be repeated over and over again.

Property values also preserved

In the Pine Cone's Oct. 2 article about the lawsuit regarding the demolition of the Arts and Crafts style house on the Donati property on San Antonio, mention was made that it was not a M. J. Murphy designed home. Nevertheless, it was designed by Percy Parks, another well-known local architect, who also designed the lovely Seven Arts building at the corner of Lincoln and Ocean Avenues, where Forest Theater founder and former Carmel Mayor Herbert "Bert" Heron operated his book store.

Also, official support for the demolition in favor of the new design was not overwhelming. While one planning commissioner may have felt the new design was "wonderful," as quoted in the Pine Cone, another elected official stated that the new design looked like a "conference center."

Enid Sales may be a flash point for historical preservation, but it must be admitted that she knows more about historic preservation in Carmel than anyone. It is hoped that property rights enthusiasts will not react viscerally to her lawsuit. Emotion aside, everyone wins when historic preservation works, including property owners, neighborhoods, and businesses. According to historic preservation economist Donovan Rypkema, in communities with an historic preservation program, tourists spend 2.5 times as much as communities without it. This does not mean more tourists, but that per capita tourists spend 2.5 times more. And nowhere has historic preservation resulted in neighborhoods with lower property values.

Carmel surfer ready for infamous Maverick's Point

By JERRY STEWART

SOMETIME BETWEEN Nov. 1 and Jan. 31, Carmel resident Don Curry and 15 other surfers, some from as far as Australia, will receive a phone call telling them it's time to ride the mountain.

Thirty-nine-year old Carmel resident Don Curry will take his big wave riding skills to new heights in a contest to be held at world famous Maverick's Point.

And what a ride it will be. In fact, the mountain is so extreme that it will make the X-games on ESPN look like Romper Room.

Curry, the owner of Carmel Fitness Center, will compete with a corps of the world's greatest big wave surfers at the inaugural Quiksilver Men Who Ride Mountains Invitational, scheduled to be held at infamous Maverick's Point near Half Moon Bay.

"They'll wait for a day that they feel is a good day, and then give us 48-hour notice to get there," said Curry.

Maverick's Point, considered one of the top three big wave spots in the world along with Waimea Bay in Hawaii and Todo Santos Island in Mexico, has over the years become a notorious mecca for big wave riders. Because swells are traveling all the way across the Pacific to get there, the resulting huge waves can also be deadly.

In December 1994, professional surfer and legendary big wave rider Mark Foo lost his life at Maverick's, drowning when he and his board were trapped under the pounding surf.

"On that day I had one foot out the door to go there," said Curry, who began surfing Maverick's in 1992. "But my wife didn't let me go. She said, 'I've got a bad feeling.' We went to Moss landing instead and on the way back we heard about Mark. Call it female intuition."

Curry's wife, Marcy, has good reason to be a little restless.

The crest of some of the waves Curry and his compatriots will be riding can be as high as 45 feet, he says, and propel the riders at speeds up to 40 miles per hour. And all in water that's so numbing your body doesn't realize it's strong stand in favor of abortion rights, saying "women should be in control, not the government."

McC Campbell is calling for creation of 12 day-care centers around the central coast, so women can work and be good mothers at the same time.

"We'll do it with private contributions, not government money," McC Campbell, 53, says. He tells a story about a single mother of two who shares a one bedroom apartment with her mother in Monterey.

"She can only clear about $1,000 a month working, and that's what child care costs," he says. "Without child care, she has no choice but to go on welfare. With my plan in place, she'll be able to take a productive job."

Carmel residents in particular, he says, are conservative on fiscal issues, and want strict environmental protection. And that, he says, is what he'll give them if he is elected to Congress.

Next week: Congressman Farr seeks another term.

cold.

"People think that anyone who surfs Mavericks is nuts," said Curry, who rode his first wave on an Easter Sunday 25 years ago. "It's a rush, but it can also be scary. If you eat it, when you're underwater there's really nothing you can do."

It's like having a liquid avalanche land on you."

Jeff Clark, a fellow big wave rider and the event's director, said that Curry was welcomed to the event because of his dedication to riding the deep blue monsters.

"Don's always been one of the guys committed to surfing the big waves," said Clark. "He knows his limitations, and out there you have to know what'll kill you and what won't."

Like an ordinary surfing contest, the participants will be judged on wave height, style and maneuvers, but, added Curry, "with big waves it's pretty much just catching the wave."

Some of the big names who will be enjoying the ride along with Curry are surfing professionals Brock Little and Ken Bradshaw.

According to Clark, that all important phone call will probably take place sometime in December, so for now Curry stays low and dry.

"I'd like some practice days," said Curry. "I'm nervous because I've never been in a surfing contest in my life."

When the day comes and Curry's staring down a 40-foot face of rage, that'll probably be the last thing on his mind.

changes in rules for Individual Retirement Accounts, effective this year, create several new types of IRAs. One is of special interest to senior citizens. Unlike conventional IRAs, annual contributions to this plan are not tax deductible. However, accumulated contributions and earnings can be withdrawn tax-free after age 59 1/2 if the account has existed for five years. Moreover, people over 70 1/2 can continue to make contributions and are not required to take annual withdrawals, as is the case with conventional IRAs. Andrew Wyeth has been called America's most beloved painter. At age 80 he was honored with exhibits of his works at several museums. Dividing his time between Chadd's Ford, Pennsylvania, and a summer home in Maine, he continues to create his one-of-a-kind masterpieces like the celebrated "Christina's World." He paints every day, although "I can't work as long as I used to. I get exhausted," he told an interviewer. "Otherwise I'm fine."

Season opens Sunday

Symphony conductor search goes public

THE PUBLIC is invited to judge the performance of the first of seven guest conductors, candidates all in the Monterey Symphony's search for a new music director. Moscow-born Dmitry Yablonsky will lead the season opening concerts Sunday through Tuesday, Oct. 18-20.

Yablonsky has selected Canadian cellist Shauna Rolston to replace Alexander Kniaev in Tchaikovsky's "Variations on a Rococo Theme for Cello and Orchestra," Op. 33. The program also includes works by Prokofiev and Brahms. Kniaev had to cancel his engagements after being diagnosed with stomach cancer.

Concerts are at 3 p.m. Sunday and 8 p.m. Monday in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel; and 8 p.m. Tuesday at Sherwood Hall, 940 N. Main St., Salinas.

Single tickets are $35, $30, $18 and $14 (for students) for the Carmel Sunday concert, $35, $30 and $24 for the Carmel Monday concert, and $28, $20 and $15 for the Salinas Tuesday concert. At the Salinas concert, seniors (65 and older) and children (12 and younger) may obtain discounted reserved orchestra seats for $24 and $10, respectively. Also at the Salinas concert, full time college students (I.D. required) can purchase unreserved balcony seats for $10.

On Friday, October 16, the Friends of the Symphony present their first concert preview luncheon in the Library Room at The Lodge at Pebble Beach. Yablonsky will be the featured speaker. Reservations are required. For

Tassajara

THE STORY THEY DIDN'T WANT YOU TO READ: WHEN CONTACTED ABOUT BEING FEATURED IN THE DAYTRIP, TASSAJARA SAID FINE, AS LONG AS THE STORY DIDN'T APPEAR UNTIL APRIL. OBVIOUSLY THEY'RE UNAWARE OF THE DEMANDS OF WORKING UNDER A DEADLINE FOR THE CONE.

TASSAJARA IS ONLY OPEN TO VISITORS FROM MAY TO AUGUST, WITH PHONE RESERVATIONS NOT TAKEN UNTIL APRIL 20. I COULD SEE THEIR POINT. WE WOULD HAVE TO GO IN DISGUISE - I WENT AS WOTAN AND JANET AS BRÜNNHILDE FROM DIE WALKÜRE

HOW TO GET THERE - BUY AN URBAN ASSAULT VEHICLE (A.K.A. A SPORT UTILITY). DRIVE 1 HOUR EAST ON CARMEL VALLEY ROAD. FOLLOW A FIRE ROAD UP AND OVER A 5000 FT. MOUNTAIN. STOP. OR, PARK AT JAMESBURG AND TAKE "THE STAGE," A CHEVY SUBURBAN.

A RESORT SINCE THE 1800s, TASSAJARA HOT SPRINGS WAS BOUGHT BY A JAPANESE MONK IN 1967. WHAT THEY'VE GOT: A BEAUTIFUL SECLUDED SETTING ALONG A CREEK, "THE NARROWS" SWIMMING HOLE, HOT MINERAL BATHS, FAMOUS VEGETARIAN CUISINE, AND ZEN (OPTIONAL).

TASSAJARA IS NOT ONE OF THOSE ULTRA-FASTIDIOUS JAPANESE MONASTARIES. IT'S ALL VERY CLEAN AND THE NEW BUILDINGS ARE SLICK, BUT THIS IS A JEANS AND T-SHIRT PLACE. CALL THEM THE ORDER OF THE FUNKY MONKS.

DINING OUT DEVOTEES: Gather here for news 'a la carte'

By MORGAN

THIS NEW COLUMN in The Carmel Pine Cone, "A la carte," will deal with upbeat news items of fine restaurants in Carmel and close by, keeping our readership informed of newsy tidbits, or tidy newsbites of the food trade — whichever seems more appropriate — with an occasional restaurant review thrown in for good measure.

Celebrity sightings, changes in ownership or executive staff, new entrées bound for glory as a chef's signature dish, awards bestowed, special menus for special occasions — whatever is newsworthy and tastily timely, we'll pass along to our readers.

That strangely beautiful entity clinging to Big Sur cliffs overlooking the vast wine-dark sea of the Pacific — the Post Ranch Inn's Sierra Mar Restaurant — has received for the sixth year Wine Spectator magazine's Grand Award of Excellence. Sierra Mar's wine list has been ranked as one of the world's top 91 wine lists from over 2,000 entries from the U.S. and abroad. And why not? There are 3,900 selections to choose from. And from these, one may select exactly the right wine to pair with Executive Chef Craig Von Forster's savory cuisine.

The Wenzlers — siblings Deborah, Diane and Deric and mom J. Morgan Wenzler — of Baum and Blume catering, Carmel Valley, will be flying off to Paris on Friday, Oct. 16 to attend the SIAL 1998 World Food Market. Of necessity, their CV establishment of 13 years will be closed until the 25th, when they return, stuffed and sated from the international specialty food showcase and a short course at Le Cordon Bleu Cooking School. The Wenzlers will be treated to a three-day tour of the Roquefort cheese caves and Armagnac cellars in the Toulouse region, as well. Baum & Blume caters to private and corporate entities at their establishment at 4 El Caminito Road.

Executive Chef Gloria Ciccarone-Nehls of The Big Four Restaurant in the Huntington Hotel on Nob Hill, S.F., will travel down the coast to oversee a very special Wild Game Dinner on Friday, Oct. 23 at the Terrace Grill of La Playa Hotel, 8th Ave. at Camino Real, Carmel. Both hotels and restaurants are owned by the Fritz-Cope and Cope families.

Following German beers with game hors d'oeuvres on the outdoor terrace, dinner will be served in the grill, all courses accompanied by '93 or '96 Joullian wines.

You might like to savor an ostrich egg frittata with artichokes and young Asiago (or perhaps Szechwan duck, or a rabbit and porcini mushroom pot pie) before you get serious with a pairing of pepper and rumsmoked wild boar loin, pistachio-crusted caribou chop, buffalo sausage and green peppercorn sauce (just one of three entrées) — followed by Pastry Chef Greg Masserini's special desserts.

The tab is $65 per person. Interested? Call 624-6476, ext. 58 with questions or credit card prepayment.

Vocalist Stephanie Crawford returns to the Jazz Store after her debut here in January. With a style similar to Abbey Lincoln and Betty Carter, Crawford garnered great acclaim in France in 1993 by winning France's highest award for jazz vocalists, the Django D'Or. With a great repertoire to choose from, Crawford delivers a lyric with an intimate feel and dramatic flair. She will be supported by the ever impressive Babatunde Trio. Her latest CD is The Gift, recorded on the French label, Concorde.

appeared at the Jazz Store this past January, and as usual, she wowed the audience with her vocal abilities. She can captivate any crowd with her Brazilian sambas and bossa novas. With an incredible vocal range and purity of tone, Villela can sing the slowest lament or scat in tempos unbelievably fast. Her latest recording is entitled "Supernova." Featured with Villela will be the brilliant guitarist Ricardo Peixoto.

Andy Bey

Sat.
Oct. 31

Vocalist and pianist Andy Bey has performed with many giants of jazz, including Bud Powell, Max Roach, Sonny Rollins, Horace Silver, and McCoy Tyner. He began his career at the Apollo Theater playing opposite Louis Jordan, and went on to touring Europe with his singing sisters. His unique style with sparse and lyrical phrasing, joined with his rich bass baritone is unforgettable. His most recent recording is Ballads, Blues and Bey, available on Evidence music. This will be an extra special solo performance you won't want to miss.

Three books; utterly diverse subjects

BOB NORRIS, local author of "Check Six," is a retired combat pilot — a commander in the U.S. Navy — who has written a fictional, suspenseful novel about a conspiracy among officers to "keep the navy pure" of the likes of two fighter attack aircraft fliers— Randi Cole and Amy Mason, who happen to be women.

In "Check Six," Journalist Jack Warner has been assigned to cover the story aboard the USS Ranger aircraft carrier — ostensibly only for his newspaper, but secretly, he is also working with top Naval brass to expose the gender battle conspiracy.

What the journalist and navy personnel aboard the USS Ranger don't know is that they are the intended targets of a stealth attack by mercenary MiG fliers. In the air, a squadron of hornet pilots, including Randi Cole, are pitted against the bounty hunters. When you've finished the book, which is a gripping, fast read of a techno-thriller, you'll feel as if you've been in a fighter cockpit.

"Banzai" Norris, who, in his naval career, logged thousands of flight hours and almost 500 carrier landings and commanded his own F/A-18 Hornet squadron, writes with compelling verisimilitude in a terse, vivid style slightly reminiscent of Mickey Spillane at his best ("His plastic smile begged for a right cross.") — but, needless to say, given the plot direction, without Spillane's sexist slant.

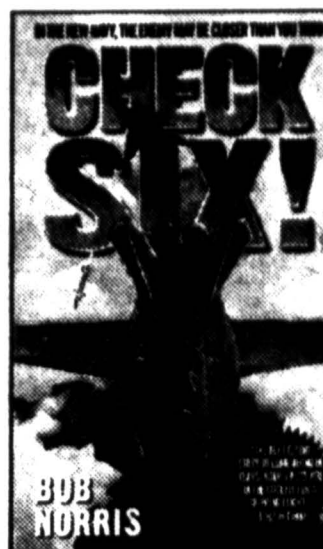

The 370-page book has just been released by Harper Paperbacks, a Division of HarperCollinsPublishers, and sells for $7.99. Norris will sign copies of his new military suspense book from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday, Oct. 19 at The Thunderbird Bookshop, The Barnyard Shopping Village, Carmel. For information, call 624-1803.

ARRIVING dramatically half an hour before the Robinson Jeffers Tor House Foundation garden party broke up at 6 p.m. last Friday (the kick-off event for the annual weekend Robinson Jeffers Festival), copies of Edith Greenan's just-off-the-press "Of Una Jeffers, A Memoir" were snapped up eagerly by attendees and signed by the book's editor, James Karman, and the author's daughter and sons, Maeve Greenan Hardy, James Greenan and Owen Greenan.

The slim, 102-page paperback, published by Story Line Press of Brownsville, Oregon was written by Una's closest friend. Not only were Una and Edith great chums, they once had been married to the same man, Edward G. Kuster, who founded The Theater of the Golden Bough here. The book covers the period from 1912 through 1922 when Edith had lived in Carmel, concluding with Edith returning to Carmel in 1936, and ending with her thoughts at that time. She wrote the book in 1938 and finished it in 1939 when 250 copies of it were printed handsomely by publisher Ward Ritchie.

This is the book's second printing, published posthumously, as Edith Greenan died in 1980. It, too, is a handsome book — paperbacks happily having evolved in this aesthetic direction — illustrated with 22 photographs by such Carmel photographers as Morley Baer and Johan Hagemeyer, among others. The cover photograph of Una in 1911 is by the eminent portrait photographer Arnold Genthe and captures an extraordinarily beautiful and sensitive young woman in the year Edith begins her story of Una, and two years before the dissolution of Una's union with Kuster and her immediate marriage to Robinson Jeffers.

The memoir reveals much of Una and Robin's early years, including just how profoundly Una

CARMEL SUMMER

*A phantom of fog, God's gauze, wraps up the town in a denial of summer.
Trees drip the sweat of dampness — or are they tears falling on the deck large as monotoned quarters?*

*I cannot see beyond the back yard.
There is no ocean. The world ends behind the acacia, the fringed branches scratching the sky with their lacy fingers.
How safe is this pocket of oblivion?
I will not venture into the unseen, the unknown —
the flimsy chiffon of grounded clouds.*

*No,
it is better to enjoy the quiet blindness until the vapors melt. Then I can discern just what the distorted figures are:
when the illusions return to their native trunks and limbs.
And the sea comes back from the opacity of ghosts.*

Brenda Jeffers, widow of Robinson's son Garth, raises a toast with Tor House Foundation's President John Hicks at their garden reception.

New Tor House trustee Alex Vardamis and Vincent Huth listen as board member - and Vincent's wife - Ripple Huth gets her point across.

Tor House sets the mood for Jeffers Festival weekend

DEAR LORD of the Animals, I am here to beseech you to give me a break. I am an innocent person. I am not a land developer you can blame for using up natural habitat rightly belonging to wildlife. (The evil deed was way over with by the time I moved here and my punishment, if you insist, is life in an overpriced, sardine-can-sized shack.) I am not a hunter who shoots for the sheer enjoyment of trophies to mount on my wall. (And flooring the gas pedal in my car when I see a raccoon crossing the road does not count.) The one time I caught a lobster and cooked it, I felt so traumatized by the boiling experience I had nightmares for days.

So WHY did you order a young possum to climb up the stairs of the threshold of my house and make his way to my bedroom the other night? I only left the door open momentarily . . . how could he have found the courage to come in unless you had expressly ordered him to do that? It was so unbelievable I totally ignored Shaki, my toy poodle, who was going absolutely berserk. But when I got fed up with the highly excited barking and went to yell at her, my ears couldn't help but pick up an unmistakable low growl that was definitely coming from inside the room, behind the bed. (Expletives deleted here.)

Dear Lord of the Animals, I assure you, the peek-a-boo game that followed was not entertaining for either of us. Nor has my reputation, already in tatters with my neighbors, benefited any. ("Honestly, Sissi, you have the strangest luck with weird animal incidents," my neighbor said as she huffed and puffed, moving furniture to create a labyrinth leading to the front door.) Although I survived (and the possum did, too, to his surprise), this time without having any rabies shots, I am truly begging you to spare me any more wildlife adventures. Honestly — I don't deserve them.

State librarian Kevin Starr discussing academia with J.S. Holliday at the Tor House Foundation banquet. (Don & Laura Newmark in the background.)

What a glorious afternoon to start off the annual Robinson Jeffers Fall Festival weekend of events, with a garden party at Tor House on October 9th. Yes, it was a bit windy, but that just added to the beauty of the surroundings. Scholars from different corners of the state mixed in with long-time Tor House supporters and board members to celebrate the 20 years of the foundation.

John Hicks, president of the board, reminisced over the efforts it had taken to survive and grow.

"The future was definitely a bit thin at times, but we pulled through," said Hicks, adding that they even managed to retire the mortgage and make some improvements with help from the Packard Foundation.

Joyce Newell, who regularly tries to make sense of the books as the foundation's accountant, showed her true loyalty when she proclaimed, "John is the very best president I've ever worked for!" Lindsay Jeffers, the poet's grandson and professor of English at RLS, held court in one corner, while board member Dick Hayman and long-time book collector Jim Johnson chatted in another sunny spot.

Following a Saturday of seminars, a banquet was then held at the Carmel Mission Inn featuring keynote speaker

Kevin Starr, California's state librarian. He had some very interesting observations to make about our area. He noted that the Monterey Peninsula is becoming more and more a "destination with a purpose" because of the growth in various areas of research (e.g. the aquarium, CSUMB, etc.). "This," he said, "forms a direct continuity from the forces that created Carmel in the first place."

Other guests included the Hollidays — Jim and Belinda — with Belinda looking resplendent as always. (And I'm not gushing! I mean it!) Barbara Livingston was keeping company with Fran Gibson, who I learned, is the sister of the inventor of the term "cyberspace" — William Gibson. Gosh, should that be part of history already?

■ Dick Criley's wait of 87 years pays off

Am I the only one who didn't realize that Dick Criley is not only an integral part of our local history but a legend in national civil rights activism? I was blown away to hear of his life and adventures at the Monterey Peninsula Branch NAACP Awards Breakfast on October 10th at the Embassy Suites.

A lineup which included Monterey County Supervisor Dave Potter, Congressman Sam Farr and State Senator Bruce McPherson, presented Dick with various certificates of honor, though nothing could really represent the magnitude of justice he has fought for. San Francisco waterfront strikes, corruption of Chicago politics along with its racist police force, the witch-hunting McCarthy crowd, anti-gay movements — it seems he's taken on every possible cause in his long life.

The Carmel Highlands resident was presented the Stephen E. Ross Award. As executive director of the Monterey County Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, he has been involved in coalition building. He initiated, in 1980, with Planned Parenthood, the Reproductive Rights coalition of Monterey County, which now includes two dozen organizations. He was active in building the Coalition of Minority Organizations, and is also chair of The Herald Reader's Committee, a group working for fair employment practices and supporting the efforts of the union to win a contract with the local daily newspaper.

What an inspiration to the rest of us... (or cause for intimidation!)

■ CPAF — Half done and going strong!

The excitement was all over the place with the eclectic collection of shows in this year's Carmel Performing Arts Festival, now entering its final weekend. Saturday night, Oct. 10, offered a chance to stop and take the pulse of entertainers and audience members alike at a reception at Carmel's Center for Photographic Art.

I had fun chatting with the performing artists from the McLain family of Nashville who lucked out and got to stay at the The Lodge at Pebble Beach. I think they were still close to being breathless at the view they had from their room. (And these are no lightweights — they've even appeared at New York's Carnegie Hall.) Listening to their comments makes one realize how much locals take for granted: "... and the air is so clean..."

Robin McKee, Beth Wilbur and Janet Howell were all carrying out various supervisory and volunteer duties. Of course Robin is the magic witch of this whole show — she twitched her nose and the whole festival fell into place. (Yeah, and pigs also fly!) Brian Gingerich was there, this time with a pup, "Bear," whose paws could give King Kong a run for his money. Bear, of course, will never be short of a comfortable mattress to sleep on...

■ Jewish Food Festival recreates the Old Country

Pop Quiz for today: without drooling, define the following — challah, mandelbrot, latkes, hamentashen... well, you get the picture. (Or if you don't, I'll tell you!) It's serious mouth-watering, traditional Jewish food. And if you weren't there on Sunday, October 11th, eating it all up at the annual Jewish Food Festival & Crafts Faire in the Congregation Beth Israel backyard, it was your loss. Wonderful food stands, great crafts on display, balloon makers and music from the old country that bewitched people into dancing... what a party!

John Catherwood was having a real easy time being a good dad with his two kids, Taylor and Michael. Dan Luba, who has tried in the past to work at the festival, finally gave up; having a brood of four — Adam, Rachel, Jacob and Joey keeps him more than just on his toes.

Release a horned owl, or buy wildlife art at SPCA wild celebration

WILD CELEBRATIONS are always fun, and the one scheduled for 2 to 5:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 18 at Holman Ranch in Carmel Valley will be no exception.

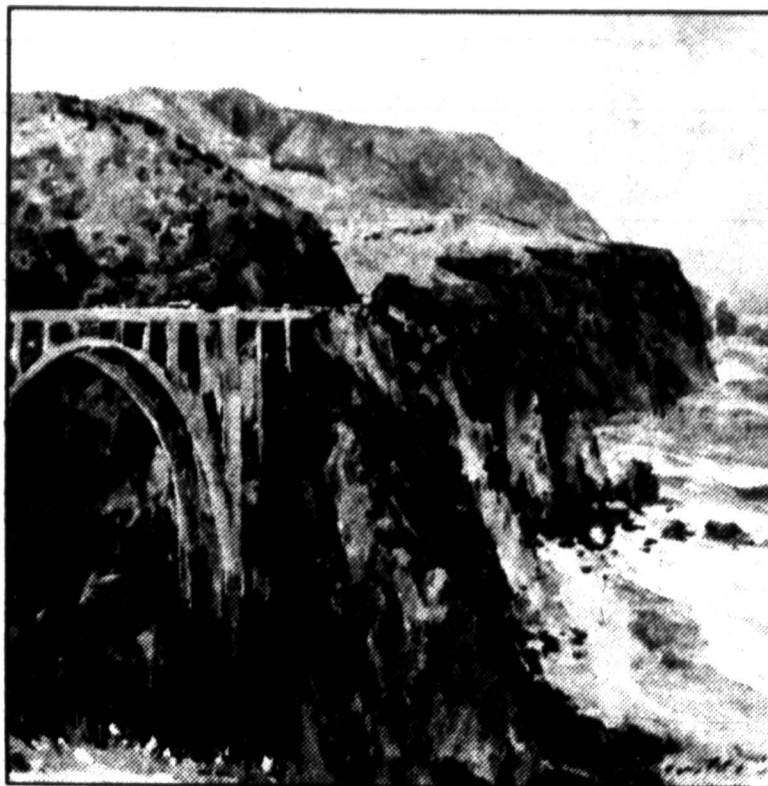

Sponsored by the SPCA's Wildlife Rescue and Rehabilitation Center, the county's only wildlife care facility will hold a fundraising auction — with the lucky winner personally releasing one of several great horned owls back into the wild immediately after the bidding.

"The chance to hold one of these aerial predators for a moment, then send it soaring back into the wild, is a rare and breathtaking experience," according to Maia Carroll of the SPCA of Monterey County.

Eight local artists will exhibit and sell their artwork as part of the celebration. Participating artists and their creations include Angelo Buffone, hand-painted silk scarves and cards with marine animals; Marlena Feldman, pet portraits; Kyle Hills, hand-painted cat cards; Pete and Sharon Irish, sterling silver animal jewelry; Bill Lewis, small bronze dolphin sculptures; Natalie Reed, acrylic paintings of African wildlife and domestic animal portraits; and Jan Voltr, Canadian geese wood carvings and watercolors.

Holman Ranch is situated in Carmel Valley at the end of Holman Road, off Carmel Valley Road, just west of the village.

Tickets are $30 per person. For details, call 373-2631 and 422-4721.

"Carmel Legends"

No. 18

Everybody knows that Del Monte is the oldest course west of the Mississippi, actually dating from 1897. But you can guess the second oldest in this area? Pebble Beach? Cypress Point? No, that honor belongs to the CARMEL GOLF CLUB, a nine hole links measuring 2112 yards, spread over the dunes of Carmel Point. Its club house stood on a rise at what is now 14th Ave. and San Antonio, and it is still there! It's a small, shingled building now used as a guest house by descendants of the founders, Philip and Laura Wilson. The course was opened a hole at a time in 1912, and the first official meeting was held Nov. 20 of that year at the Pine Inn. Memberships were $20 a year, green fees 50¢ a day. The land was owned by the Carmel Development Company, which assured the Club by written contract that it "would not be sold in lots or otherwise till after the year 1915." Among the members was Dr. Clampett, which brings us up to date. The club expired around 1920, and today nearly 300 houses stand on its abandoned fairways. Think what might have been!

Self-storage facility proposed for Carmel Valley Road

The original plans called for a series of French Provincial buildings — which have now been revised to 'barn rustic.'

By PAUL MILLER

WHAT KIND commercial development generates the least traffic and uses hardly any water?

Partners Jim Field and Steve Mirabito think they have the answer: a self-storage facility.

The men have proposed such a business for Carmel Valley Rd. near Robinson Canyon, on a 4.8-acre commercially zoned site next to the farm center.

Self-storage units (approximately 100) plus RV parking will be available if the plan is approved by the county.

"The traffic report was done and it shows that self-storage units are practically the lowest traffic generator among all commercial facilities, plus they are classified as the lowest water user," attorney Todd Bessire, who represents the builders, told The Pine Cone.

Melissa Lofton, an artist whose studio is next door to the proposed storage site, says she and many others in Carmel Valley are concerned about the project, especially because it involves removing several large Eucalyptus trees in the middle of the property.

"Those trees will go, but a number of large pines will remain, and we'll be heavily landscaping the perimeter with new trees to screen the storage units from the road and from nearby houses," Bessire says.

Also, the builders say a "perimeter wall will be constructed of concrete and will surround virtually the entire center. These walls will be painted beige and designed to look similar to the residential wall along Carmel Valley Road." And, "all lighting within the center will be low, along the sides of the storage buildings and directed away from the adjacent residences," they say.

An informal footpath connecting Carmel Valley Rd. to Robinson Canyon has traversed the property for years, neighbors say — a path they would like to see preserved.

The owners have offered to dedicate such a hiking trail along the back of the new storage facility. This idea is being studied by the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District, Bessire says.

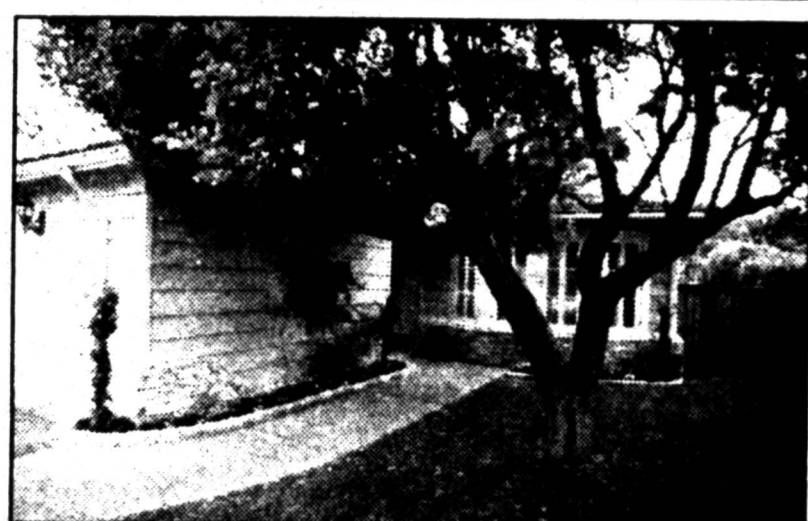

The builders say they have "spent ten years developing extremely successful and architecturally appealing self-storage centers." They sent a letter to the project's neighbors asking for comments and promising, "we look forward to being a valued member of the community."

The original design called for buildings in a French Provincial style, "with curved entries, divided light windows and highly gabled roof lines."

Those plans have been revised to barn-type rustic structures after the developers heard from a local advisory committee.

The new plans will be the subject of an initial study conducted by the county planning department to determine if the proposal may have any significant impacts on the environment.

The plans will then go to the Monterey County Planning Commission, and possibly to the Board of Supervisors, for consideration.

Carmel's Planning Commission loved this house

By KIRSTIE WILDE

IT COULD have been a recipe for a long, drawn-out fight with city planners: Take one "traditional Carmel cottage" on the border of Carmel's Mission Trails Park, and propose to turn it into a modern, two-story, 4,246-square-foot family home.

But instead of a permit battle, architect Ed Nimis and the Gonzales family fairly sailed through the process with a design that the planning commissioners appreciated.

Besides an attractive design, was there a secret?

"We worked really closely with the planning staff with regard to the 'massing' of the project," Nimis told The Pine Cone. "We did go back and forth quite a bit before we came to a meeting of the minds."

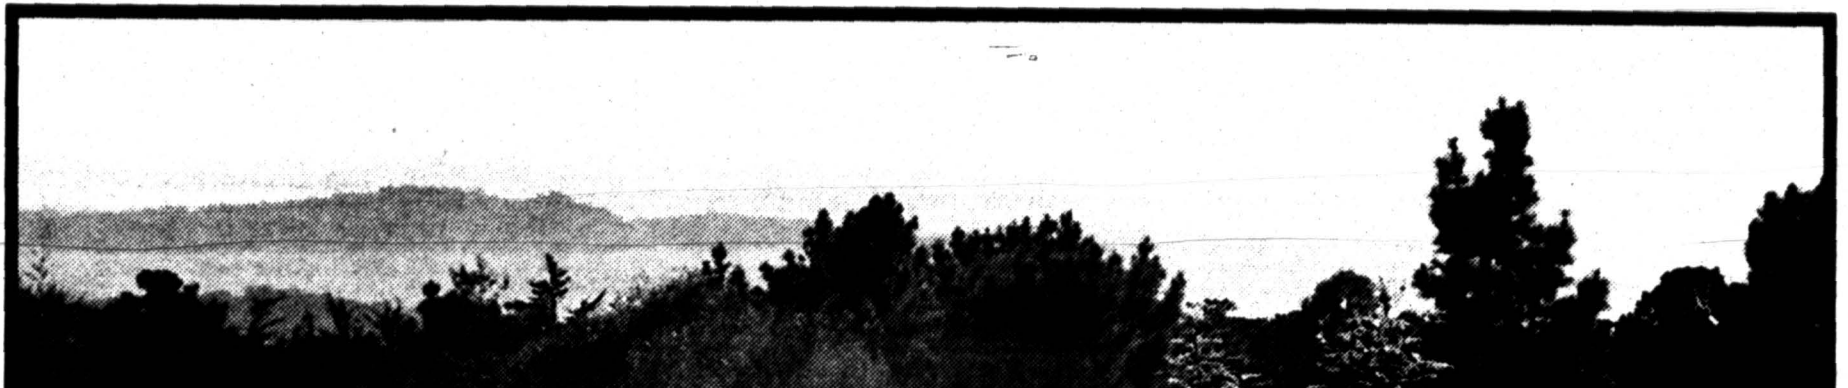

One of the greatest hurdles for Nimis was to overcome the vision of the story poles and bright orange netting that are required for almost all building projects now. They are supposed to show the approximate height and width of the proposed building, but they present an ugly picture which often alarms neighbors and planners.

"I wanted the staff to see a truer picture of the new house, so I met them on the property and flopped the rendering right in front of them. That way they could see how the poles related to the real design," explained Nimis.

When the Carmel Planning Commissioners had their first chance to vote on the proposal, they passed it unani-

The Carmel Planning Commission unanimously approved this 4,246-square-foot home design, to replace a 'traditional Carmel cottage' on the border of Mission Trails Park.

Multi-million $ home sales breaking all records this year

By PAUL MILLER

SALES OF multi-million dollar homes in Pebble Beach continued at an all-time record pace in the third quarter of 1998, a high-end specialist with Coldwell Banker Del Monte Realty said this week.

Mike Canning says figures compiled by the Monterey County Association of Realtors show that in the first nine months of this year, 45 homes were sold in Pebble Beach for more than $1 million, including 24 which sold for under $2 million; 13 that went for $2 million to $4 million; and 8 that sold for more than $4 million.

The previous record year was 1997, when 38 homes sold for more than $1 million in the whole year. (1996 had 35 sales in the sky-high sales bracket, while 1995 saw only 10 homes sell for more than $1 million.)

"The two price ranges exhibiting the strongest performance are the $2 to $2.5-million price bracket and the $4 million and above sector — both of these will more than double their five-year average sales levels," Canning says.

The local real estate boom has been fueled by a terrific escalation of prices in the San Francisco Bay area over the last two years.

Buyers there have been pitted against each other in bidding wars that have often started at a home's asking price and gone up from there.

One analyst compared buying a home in San Jose to "going into combat."

But is the Pebble Beach real estate market going to soften as a result of the big decline in stock prices over the last two months?

Canning says that so far local sales figure reflect no reduction of demand for high-end homes in Pebble Beach.

Other realtors agree that big money continues to pour into the area, driving home prices higher and higher. And the inventory of homes on the market remains very low.

But our market follows trends in the San Francisco Bay area, where some softening of prices has been experienced, Canning says.

'Editorial tantrum'

Dear Editor:

I was so surprised and stunned by the superficial and confused thinking and petulant nature of your editorial that I felt compelled to answer it in kind. Your editorial has found fault with the California Environmental Quality Act and I encourage you to pursue its change — if in fact you are being candid. Still Enid Sales did not write the Act and isn't responsible for its shortcomings — if any.

What she did do was use it, in the same manner and for the same purpose that it is used throughout California. CEQA gives her the opportunity to pursue her complaint only if the City failed to comply with the Act. Where else may the City have erred in this matter?

Your little editorial tantrum, attacking Enid Sales personally as well as your attempts to brand her efforts as "a petty gripe" and "an insignificant distraction" and your arrogant admonishment to her on how she should conduct her civic duty seem more like the distraught hand-wringing of an interested party. What is your interest? This editorial was certainly not the credible and responsible community thought-piece that it deserved to be.

Kudos to Enid Sales. My wife, myself and many other of her neighbors in the community applaud her efforts.

Starnes says 'alternates' will never be approved

Dear Editor,

Carmel residents are being poorly served by the continued efforts to kill the Hatton Canyon Scenic Highway by members of the community with misstatements about the project and promoting wild alternate plans.

The false choices are either those studied and found wanting like the 4-U concept, or Carmel architect Ray Parks' plan described in the October 2 issue of the Carmel Pine Cone.

Parks would "lower the Highway where it intersects Carpenter Street, Ocean Avenue, Carmel Valley Road and Rio Road . . . all four roads would cross over Highway 1 on bridges with on-and-off ramps connecting the roads to the lowered Highway 1."

First, it is a long down-grade to lower Highway 1 prior to reaching the four intersections. It would require a lot of land to construct ramps. There would be few willing sellers of homes!

Second, how would motorists entering and leaving from the other six intersections, the residents entering and leaving the 23 driveways, and the Handley Hills compound drop down onto the lowered Highway 1?

Residents facing Rio Road on the west side of the Highway and upper Ocean Avenue would be trapped behind the bridges arising from the front of the homes to climb over Highway 1. Entrance to the Chevron Station, Mission Inn and the Bank of America would be difficult if not impossible.

What does Parks mean, "Hatton Canyon would be great for cars passing through, but terrible for local traffic"? Just the opposite is true. The local traffic will use Highway 1 just as they now do, but without the dangerous congestion caused by the through traffic . . .

Mayor White misrepresented Carmel residents when he wrote on September 14 that Carmel is "the entity that would be most impacted by the proposed freeway." Correction: Carmel village is greatly impacted by NOT HAVING THE FREEWAY BUILT.

Motorists speed through the streets of Carmel to bypass the clogged Highway 1.

I hope that residents of the village of Carmel will speak out to complain that their streets are crowded and damaged, and they need the Hatton Canyon project for relief.

Realize, the improperly engineered "solutions" will never be approved and funded. Do you want to wait another 40 years for relief? Of course not.

We won't 'overdose' on art

Dear Editor:

Please tell the Carmel City Council not to tamper with perfection. Didn't Carmel begin as an artist's colony? Saying there are too many art galleries is like saying there is too much music. I applaud the council in its efforts to maintain balance in the number and types of businesses in Carmel. It proves council members take their jobs seriously. But the good council should realize that beauty should never be rationed; we won't overdose on it.

'Carmel was heavily wooded'

Dear Editor,

Your interesting editorial, "Treeless Carmel hasn't materialized," contains the misstatement, heard from time to time, that Carmel was generally without trees until they were planted by early developers and residents.

The fact is that the area of what today is Carmel-by-the-Sea, and the adjacent territory, was heavily wooded. It is also a fact that tree coverage was thin between today's Monte Verde Street and the beach. It was particularly in this area, therefore, and throughout the village where trees were removed for streets and buildings, that Frank Devendorf encouraged residents to plant trees.

That the area was forested can be checked easily by anyone interested. There is a fascinating photograph of a man sitting in a one-horse gig on a slight rise. The entirety of Carmel—and its trees—stretches away west to the bay and south to the Carmel River.

This photograph can be seen as a large mural at the Wells Fargo branch at the Crossroads. And in a smaller version in the entrance to the General Store restaurant in town.

The man in the gig, I believe, is one of the Duckworth brothers, of Monterey, who started in the 1880's development of a community which they saw as a Roman Catholic counterpart of the Protestant Pacific Grove.

The man and gig sit, I believe by study of the terrain, at the northeast corner of what is today Junipero (then called Broadway) and Ocean Avenue. Both roadways, as the photo shows, were in the very beginning of grading. The Duckworth plans were frustrated when bank financing became tight, and Carmel development later passed to Devendorf and Frank Powers.

Editor's note:

The Pine Cone would also like to draw Mr. Skidmore's attention to this photo, which appears in the recently published "Old Carmel in Rare Photographs" 1999 Calendar. According to the calendar (which was produced by Sharon Lawrence and is for sale throughout Carmel) the photo shows the view south of Ocean Avenue in 1900.

The photo, with Pt. Lobos in the distance, shows much of Carmel-by-the-Sea as a treeless meadow.

'Put an end to absurdity'

To the Editor:

Based on the last two "tree articles" in your newspaper, a certain tree-hugging group of commissioners can't see the forest for their trees.

The Carmel Forest and Beach Commission is acting without common sense and good judgment in forcing Mrs. Gallo to remove her 14-by-15-foot patch of lawn and irrigation system from her "front yard" because she wants to remove the tree that is leaning over her house and ready to press against her kitchen window in the "side yard." Taking control of Mrs. Gallo's whole yard and imposing unnecessary penalties is wrong.

I believe the City of Carmel approved the landscape plan (including the lawn and irrigation) prior to issuing its occupancy permit and later when it provided Mrs. Gallo with a "city report" showing no violations, prior to her taking title to the property.

Regardless, the issue here is that this tree will soon be poking its bark through Mrs. Gallo's kitchen window! Additional risks involve the possibility of damage to her roof and harm to persons inside her home. This tree, and its location, was disclosed to Gallo (per Civil Code Section 2079) during the escrow period. Our firm represented Gallo in acquiring this property. We knew that it was only a matter of time before the tree would have to go.

The commission's chairperson, Karen Ferlito, uses the excuse that she and her fellow commissioners cannot allow the removal of the kitchen-window tree because the lawn irrigation in the front yard "might" damage the oak tree there. If Carmel lawns are on the hit list, what group or department allowed the newly-installed fence on the next-door property, immediately south of Gallo's property, without removal of that front lawn? It's three times the size of Gallo's lawn!

It's obvious that these commissioners value trees more than homes and the people who live in them. If they continue to make these kinds of decisions, someday they will make a serious mistake by disallowing the removal of a tree that, during the bureaucratic process, will destroy property and/or hurt/kill innocent people. It's time to put an end to this absurdity, now.

Some hearts don't come cheap

Dear Editor,

The Carmel Business Association recently held a contest for a new logo to replace its worn out "heart" as noted in your paper.

The Guardian newspaper reports that the British TV network, ITV [ITN], just paid upwards of $1.7 million for its new upscale logo — you got it: the symbol's a heart, with the slogan, "TV from the heart."

mously. Several commissioners praised the design, making note of the two 36-inch boxed redwood trees in the landscaping plan which will help screen the two-story house from Mission Trails Park. They also appreciated the fact that the footprint of the new home would be shrunk by about 1,100 square feet, even though the floor area was expanding by 1,800 square feet.

(Staff counted an area noted as "open to below" as floor area, explaining that it "adds mass and bulk and could be converted into floor area" later.)

Chris and Norma Gonzales, newly arrived in Carmel, wanted a bigger home for their growing family of four, and a peek at the ocean. They had heard some horror stories of other property owners in the vicinity of Mission Trails Park whose house plans were rejected by the city.

"They were wondering if we were in for a long haul," said Nimis. "You just have to tell them, it could happen."
